

KEY HEADLINES:

The Indian rupee recovered from a record low to end flat on Monday after the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) likely intervened in the markets, but it is to be expected that the local currency was set for further losses.

The partially convertible rupee pared all its losses to close unchanged at 82.32 per dollar, pulling back from a record low of 82.6825 hit in early morning trades.

The RBI likely sold dollars via state-run banks at 82.60-82.65 levels, as a U.S. jobs report firmed bets of more aggressive rate hikes by the Federal Reserve and prompted a sell-off in Asian assets. A holiday in the U.S. meant that dollar purchases for trade accounts were muted to some extent, also helping the central bank to keep the rupee well contained.

India's depleting foreign exchange reserves in the face of rupee's rapid depreciation were becoming a point of concern, as they fell 16% at September-end compared to the beginning of the year. This was the biggest percentage drop among emerging Asian markets, said Goldman Sachs analysts.

Meanwhile, the dollar index climbed above 113-levels and oil prices hovered near $97 per barrel. Crude has surged about 10% this month alone on output cuts, with analysts saying the $100 price point was on the horizon.
