

KEY HEADLINES:

- German business morale rose in November and Europe's largest economy is on track to grow by 0.2% in the fourth quarter as its domestic strength more than offsets a manufacturing recession, the Ifo economic institute said on Monday. Munich-based Ifo said its business climate index rose to 95.0 in November from 94.7 in October. The November reading was in line with a Reuters consensus forecast. Europe's biggest economy is going through a soft patch as its export-oriented manufacturers battle with trade friction, a struggling car industry and uncertainties over Britain's planned departure from the European Union.
- The dollar held an upper hand against the yen on Tuesday as optimism on a trade deal between the United States and China dented the allure of the safe-haven unit while the British pound was supported by hopes of an end to a hung parliament. China's Global Times, a tabloid run by the ruling Communist Party's official People's Daily, said on Monday on its Twitter feed the two countries are very close to a "phase one" trade deal, discounting "negative" media reports. Report raised optimism the deal and lifted the dollar against the yen to as high as 109.02 yen JPY= , a one-week high, by early Asian trade on Tuesday.
- Mexico's economy entered a mild recession during the first half of 2019 and was flat in the third quarter, revised data from the national statistics agency showed on Monday, handing a setback to the plans of President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador. The updated figures showed the economy contracted by 0.1% quarter-on-quarter in seasonally-adjusted terms during both the first and second quarters of 2019 after also shrinking by the same margin in the last three months of last year. A recession is usually defined by economists as two consecutive quarters of contraction in gross domestic product.
